In a NAND flash memory, memory cells are arranged in matrix form, and the writing and erasure of a memory cell are controlled by a peripheral circuit. Since, however, the addition of a peripheral circuit is accompanied with a problem of an increased area in a chip, a planar type NAND flash memory employing a TFT (Thin Film Transistor) for switching as a memory cell is actively studied and developed. What's new:

is a Japanese tokusatsu superhero, appearing in the 1940s. In the series, he is the most technologically advanced criminal on Earth, and is meant to be the protector of that world. He fights evil forces through different ways: blasts with a modified atom bomb, smoke bombs, tomas, ray guns, modified laser and upgraded versions of his fists. His regular identikit outfit and command console are covered by a constant white suit, as well as his skull-shaped helmet and nemesis Dagon mask. History The birth of the Space Invaders In the late 1930s, upon the world developments, people started to look for a way to escape the world situation and fate, searching for an answer to find an escape which people haven't found yet. Some people search for finding evil and danger while others search for finding peace. While the world was to place fast on its way to war, some people took matters by their own hands and selfishly searched for a way to forget all the troubles and tribulations. One of the people who were searching on the internet was a young woman called Thelma DeLaria, with great passion, she came across an article which showed a white missile shaped object appeared above Hawaii on October 28, 1972. She searched for her grandpa, and sent her messages to him which were quickly answered and later, she met him in New York after the attack. When she came to know more about what happened and how she came to join in, she told her grandpa that she will be searching for more information about this white missile and they came to Japan, their land of origin. But before she could fully learn more about this white missile, a man called Chiba Genshirō appeared from nowhere and fired a ray gun at a bright light, creating a gigantic tunnel, which lead to the Hawaii's space and Thelma came to know about the attack. She contacted Chiba in Japan, but he arrogantly opposed her plan, and told her about an abandoned village which was in a secret cave. Searching for a new life, she came to the village. And there she met a young pale man with purple hair, a side-angel called Daedalus, who was an anthropologist. They returned to the Hawaii's space before Chiba came to hear their last plan. But things were not to be the way they planned. It was when Daedalus, Thelma and Chiba had ready
