.Q: Fetching the latest three month dataframe from data frame having more than 50k rows I have a dataframe df1 of size >50k rows with few columns like Location, Month and Sales_over_three_month. I want to fetch the latest three months of sales data in a different data frame df2 of same size (e.g., for the above data frame df1, 3-months df2 will have size equal to that of df1). Note: I am not able to find an exact example of what I am looking for. A: You can try: Since column month is unique, you can use apply() and getLast() to get the latest data. Then you can concat() to get the data in 3 months. df1 = df1.set_index('Month').apply(lambda x : x.set_index('Month').reset_index()['Sales_over_three_month']).getLast().reset_index() df2 = pd.concat([df1,df1], axis=1) print(df2) Output: Sales_over_three_month

Following her conviction for a 2002 attack on ex-husband Mel, she was sentenced to domestic violence counseling and probation. The affair had been sparked by a high-profile legal battle that saw the actor use profane and crude language against his ex-wife during a TV appearance. He refused to apologize to the public for his violent, drunken behavior toward his ex, and Locklear, who was undergoing intense media scrutiny over the fact that she had been granted a restraining order against her husband, denied any history of domestic abuse. The TV star began to track Locklear down after the restraining order was issued and despite her claim of not having been physically abused by him, he stayed with her before and after her ex-husband's custody battle. Gibson hit his ex in the face with a wine bottle in May 2002, leaving her with a broken nose, and the pair then lived together for five weeks before breaking up. However, they then reconciled in July, despite law enforcement being tipped off by a neighbor of Locklear's. After their latest separation, Gibson was arrested for allegedly drinking and driving, with authorities discovering his blood alcohol level at.22. Law enforcement officials found her stashed away in the rear of a bar in the Hollywood Hills under an assumed name. She was allegedly wearing Gibson's rings and apparently sleeping in his bed. Police managed to apprehend Gibson, who was not arrested until the following day at 8 p.m. Gibson was released on $33,000 bail and had his car and house released to him. He was then seen taking his spouse to a hospital for treatment. Locklear later filed for legal separation from Gibson, and in November 2007, she was granted a divorce.
